is said to have disclosed the fact that the contractor was doing the work according to specifications did not tally with those adopted by the board, and to which the property owners had agreed. The charge is made that the specifications were changed by the former city engineer with the consent of the former board, and that property owners knew nothing of the changes. The changes were in making the street wider and in putting in brick instead of gravel gutters, increasing the cost. The contractor offered to compromise the matter with the property owners by deducting $500 from his bill, but to this the property owners refused to consent. It is proposed that the contractor file suit against the city for an amount equal to that which he has already expended. This course was decided upon by the Board of Works, the city attorney and the attorney for the contractor.
